Deeply-ingrained coffee-drinking traditions have collided with investment from international brands and a growing desire among young consumers to partake in Western dining traditions, creating a thriving segment of modern coffee shops that are now battling with traditional cafés. Growth is high and competition is fierce, but unlike in most major markets, cafés and coffee shop chains are both finding impressive growth. There is a new research from Allegra World
Coffee Portal, it suggests that the Middle East branded coffee market boasts more than 9,000 outlets in 2018, while significant future growth is predicted in many of the 12 Middle Eastern countries identified.

Based on more than 70 in-depth interviews and more than 200 surveys with industry experts, along with field visits and desk research, the London-based research group said that significant outlet growth is forecast over the next five years as “Western café concepts become more popular and premiumization gains momentum.” Starbucks, Dunkin’ and Coca-Cola-owned Costa Coffee are the three largest chains throughout the Middle East market, they are the main strong competitors for J. CO Donuts & Coffee to enter the Middle East market. J. CO Donuts & Coffee need to have a very detailed planning for the market entry to Middle East. But we look in another way, this also means that people in Middle East like to have their coffee with snacks, this make the enter of J. CO Donuts & Coffee to Middle East is sensible. In conclusion, J. CO Donuts & Coffee have a bright future for their entry to Middle East since the eating habits of having snacks and coffee of people in Middle East is same with others. J. CO Donuts & Coffee just need to make some research and look into it to make their own planning.

According to the justification idea, we know that coffee culture is very famous in the Middle East, and there are many brands of coffee shops in the Middle East. It is obvious that if JCO company enters the Middle East market, it will be a huge challenge. However, due to the great influence of coffee culture in the Middle East, JCO company also has a great opportunity in the Middle East market. First of all, JCO is a coffee restaurant. It is not a traditional coffee shop. It not only sells all kinds of coffee, but also all kinds of doughnuts, hamburgers and ice cream, which can attract more potential customers.

Culture and Environment
Because for people in the Middle East, they prefer to spend some time with potential customers, bosses or employees for coffee, but don't limit the idea of having coffee only to coffee, as the practice can include tea or a mean as well. However, JCO still facing some problems which are consistent long line when ordering precautions the customers from buying. JCO must rectify this problem, such as expanding the store and opening more counters to increase the sales rate, so as to increase loyal customers. Moreover, because the religions in the Middle East are very different from those in other regions. The Middle East is mainly Muslim oriented, so the food in the coffee restaurant must be mainly Halal. The detailed taste needs to be investigated through the customer's needs. For example, people in Saudi Arabia and Turkey like different tastes, so the coffee shop must be biased according to the region. To change the style and taste of food. For example, the shop assistant can ask customers to fill out a simple taste survey report, or provide a new product tasting activity, so as to summarize the taste preferences of customers in the region.

Digital market
The key to success in the Middle East requires smart social media strategies, with young people in most Arab countries most often dealing with brands through online platforms. For example, Starbucks Middle East Facebook has 1464361 fans, Starbucks Middle East Instagram account has 375000 fans, JCO can use its own language to directly contact consumers in the Middle East and North Africa. Over the past few years, the new YouTube account has been dedicated to delivering inspiring and inspiring videos for the brand, cleverly recognizing the potential to reach consumers in a new format. Brand promotion has even been adjusted for the region, for example: a smooth and attractive Arabic version of the iconic Starbucks logo and regional adjustment of the Saudi Arabian market have increased the brand's appeal. JCO’s digital market medias include twitter, Facebook and Instagram, three social software, which can reasonably use the digital market for advertising in the Middle East, such as viral advertising. Because of the development of science and technology, many people will use mobile phones, computers, tablet computers and other electronic devices. First, let people know what JCO is, and then interested people will go to the official website of JCO to learn more about it, so as to increase potential customers. JCO also establishes the same social platform as other regions, such as Facebook, Instagram and twitter, etc., which can be used to contact with customers, so that customers can provide us with better suggestions. For example, JCO can post some satisfaction questionnaires for customers to fill in, not only that, but also make some promotional activities through social platform, such as forwarding a post. You can get discount coupons and so on.

Company competition
Because of the popularity of coffee culture in the Middle East, there have been many old coffee shops in the Middle East as early as a long time ago, such as Starbucks, Costa coffee, Shakespeare & Co, etc. for doughnuts. Dunkin’ s Donuts is also popular among people in the Middle East, so when competing with other coffee shops or doughnuts, we need to analyze each other. The advantages and disadvantages of Dunkin’ s can be better learned from the advantages of other companies to increase our advantages. Dunkin’ s price is lower than that of its competitors, so when setting the food price, it can’t be too higher than the price of its competitors, and then it must have its own unique style in taste, and can’t imitate the competitors, so as to attract customers' eyes. Because Dunkin’ s donuts and Big Apple's products are actually similar to those of JCO’, if there is no new flavor or other attractive place, they will definitely choose the coffee shop or doughnut shop they often go to. And JCO can create community participation and social promotion in the form of supporting positive social entrepreneurship. For example, JCO can allow professional skills building workshops on "employ-ability and entrepreneurship theme" for young people in a Middle East region, so that young people can acquire the skills needed for employment and education opportunities. In this way, not only the company's brand can be promoted rapidly, but also the cooperation with other famous companies can be achieved, which also lays a solid foundation for the development in the Middle East.

The coffee culture in the Middle East is very popular, thus, coffee shops and cafes are big businesses in the Middle East, with a market of 4 billion US dollars in Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Israel and the United Arab Emirates. Which means has many cafes in the Middle East, so JCO will have many competitors in the middle East, which will face a huge challenge. Hence, JCO needs to understand the innovation's importance. The advantage of JCO is that it is not only a coffee shop, but also includes donuts, yoghurt and other foods. JCO can start with donuts and make them into various good-looking styles to attract customers, because people in the Middle East like to eat snacks very much, and many sweet food and donuts will be their first choice, so that many Middle East customers can sweet donuts or enjoying sweet dessert while drinking coffee. And in the process of food production, due to the political influence of the Middle East, all the food must have the Halal logo, and only in this way can people from the middle east come to JCO.
To stand out from so many competitors, there must be a marketing strategy, which needs to be implemented in the network and reality. First of all, on the Internet, JCO has Facebook pages, Instagram and Twitter in central and Southeast Asia, but there are not many followers of web page updates and less communication application using. It can be seen that JCO doesn’t pay much attention to network strategy in Southeast Asia. In the Middle East, JCO needs to improve this disadvantage. The rational use of social media can increase more potential customers, for example Starbucks frequently makes with the network strategy, JCO can release some promotions, such as 20% discount for the third cup of two cups of coffee, etc., and establish a committee that can make customers give feedback, so as to collect customers' comments and collect customers' hobbies to change JCO’s tastes. The network strategy does not only refer to this aspect. JCO should open online shopping in the Middle East, because there are more hot times in the Middle East, so open online shopping can increase more potential customers, but also reduce the number of customers in the store, so it will not make cafes crowded or long queues. Then there's the real strategy. JCO can do more promotions when it opens shop in the Middle East, so that the brand of JCO can make an impression on people in the Middle East, and then more and more people will know about JCO.

In addition to social media, there is another important strategy is advertising, which can make faster, easier and more convenient to introduce to potential customers. With advertising, it will get many people's attention, and advertising can be through newspapers, TV, posters and so on. JCO can create a community participation and social promotion by supporting positive social entrepreneurship. For example, JCO can hold professional skills building workshops on “employability and entrepreneurship theme” for young people in the Middle East, so that young people can acquire the skills needed for employment and education opportunities. This kind of public welfare activity can not only rapidly promote the company's brand, but also realize Now we are cooperating with other famous enterprises to lay a solid foundation for the development of the Middle East.

JCO donuts and coffee enter the Middle east market also can through franchise strategy. Which is a kind of continuous relationship, in which the franchisor provides franchising right to the franchisee, and provides assistance in organization, training, sales, marketing and management, in exchange for monetary reward. Franchising refers to a business form in which the owner (franchisor) of products, services or methods obtains distribution through the associated distributors (franchisee). Franchising can be a low-cost, low-risk entry mode, allowing rapid regional expansion, which will make more and more JCO coffee shops in the Middle East and lay a good foundation in the Middle East.

On the other hand, JCO has a risk of this idea. Due to the rising obesity rate and diabetes symptoms in the Middle East, and JCO mainly deals in sweets related foods. Then many people will think that JCO will make them obese or make them have diabetes at that time. According to this problem, JCO can develop a another way to replace white sugar with other things, such as oligosaccharide Fructose, because oligofructose cannot be directly digested and absorbed by human body, can only be absorbed and utilized by intestinal bacteria, so its calorific value is low, which will not lead to obesity, and it is also a good sweetener for diabetic patients. It is possible to replace normal sugar by extracting oligofructose, which may solve this problem. There is also a big risk that there are too many competitors. They will only go to the coffee shop they often go to and may not pay attention to the new coffee shop.
CONCLUSIONS

With all its dynamism, marketing in the Middle East has a gap that companies can exploit. To launch an effective marketing strategy, companies need to have a strong information base about the market and update what needed to be anticipated. Consumer understanding cannot be done separately through statistical data or by conducting surveys, but must go through intensive research to get the right business analysis.

As a company that wants to expand into the Middle East, J.CO Coffee & Donuts can not only fulfill the factors that form the basis of product development, but also need to be improved when carrying and introducing company brands. It is important to know Arabs who carry out promotional campaigns more than those who communicate with the product itself. They will have a higher awareness about the advertising part of the product name. It's possible, J.CO can organize an effective campaign and run a strong message.

J.CO needs to maximize the use of data insights, and create an organic acquisition channel with your SEO and Social Media to reduce the company's advertising needs. In addition, marketing using influencers might be the key to success in this region. To review the market, J.CO Coffee & Donuts can use a number of strategies that can strengthen its brand equity in the Middle East, such as introducing brands to the community, working with translation companies or local communication service providers to provide services, raise awareness and build good public awareness and adjusting the strategy to the habits and cultivation of the local community.
